For the 2021 edition of the Top 100, we have decided to put the architectural cats among the interior designer pigeons. Historically a round-up of the very best decorators in the country, this year it also includes some of the UK's most exciting residential architectural practices. One thing is for sure, whether your project needs an aesthetic refresh, a thoughtful restoration, or knocking down and rebuilding, the House & Garden Top 100 should be the first place you look for emerging and established design talent. Congratulations to everyone who made the list this year.

JOHN McCALL

A stalwart of the British design scene, John McCall is known for interiors that have the quality of seeming as if they have always been thus. This is a great skill when they often involve back-to-the-brickwork renovations. Traditional English decorating and country houses big and small are a particular strength, but John is no stranger to softening up more modern environs. One of his recent projects was the overhaul of the largest privately owned house in Knightsbridge (to appear in a future issue). mccalldesign.co.uk
